CROWDS SPRING UP IN A MOMENT.

Six Thousand Throng to Hear Bryan on Short Notice

Academy of Music Filled and Overflow Meetings Held in Jersey City.

Proposes a Series of Questions to Put to Gold Standard Advocates.

"FIFTY CENT DOLLAR" TALK ANSWERED.

After a Few Words to the People Outside the Academy the Candidate Returns to New York City.

More than six thousand people heard and saw William J. Bryan at Jersey City yesterday afternoon. Despite the fact that the meeting was held on less than twenty-four hours' notice, a squad of police numbering pearly a hundred men, under the command of Chief Murphy, had difficulty in handling the throng that assembled outside the Academy of Music as early as 1 o'clock. The Democratic nominee was advertised to appear at 2 o'clock.

Thirty minutes before that hour the doors of the spacious theatre were thrown open and in a few minutes every seat was taken and every aisle was crowded with an enthusiastic crowd of men and women.

Outside the hall thousands gathered on Gregory street, patiently awaiting the arrival of Mr. Bryan. The police arrangements were perfect, and the crowd was held in check, but the location of the hall enabled every one to see the candidate when he arrived. The roofs and the windows in the vicinity of the Academy gave points of vantage to scores of people.

Mr. Bryan was late in arriving from New York. It was after 3 o'clock when the poce ecort appeared, leading his carriage.

The Gause of Lockjaw Explained.

In this disease the muscles of mastica tion become contracted and set, closing the jaws so tightly that it is impossible to separate them without danger of tearing the muscles themselves. The motor nerves D are the ones affected. They emerge from the brain and spinal cord and are distributed to the temporal muscle A, the buccinator muscle B, and the remaining muscles of the cheek which move the under jaw. D represents some of the motor ner ves.

lockjaw with antitoxine, was much improved in condition hast hight, and the doctors hope that the treatment will in time effect a complete recovery. Dr. Thomas F. McCleary, of No. 915 Bedford avenue, and Dr. Truax, of Franklin avenue, the two physicians who are attending Hardgrove, are watching the case closely. They said last night their patien's improvement was remarkably rapid.

The case is attracting the attention of the doctors of the Health Department. The remedy had been tried before, but in all cases the disease had been so far advanced that it failed of results. In Hardgrove's case, however, the early symptoms were promptly recognized, and the doctors lost no time in giving the injections. A dose of ten cubic centimetres is administered every four hours.
